

NEW COLLEGE EXPENSES RESOURCES for EMPLOYEES and THEIR FAMILIES

Helping Deaconess employees manage student loans and education expenses now and in the future

NATION-WIDE, STUDENT LOAN DEBT HAS BEEN ON THE RISE, affecting employees' financial well-being. Deaconess knows student loan debt and college expenses also affect many of our employees, whether related to their own education or for current or future needs of their family members.

That's why we're excited to introduce the new Student Loan Wellness Program from Tuition.io.

This service is free for every Deaconess employee and includes:

- Personalized, live, 1-on-1 student loan coaching (via email, chat or calls), helping families set goals for paying off debt or saving for college—or both!
- Information and assistance with public service loan forgiveness programs related to employment at a non-profit organization (like Deaconess)
- A marketplace for refinancing existing student loans

- A clean dashboard of information, displaying all current student debt, loan payoff projection options, repayment tools, recent transactions and more
- Detailed information about 529 savings plans and other college finance options for children in your family

When you sign up with Tuition.io, you'll have access to a full suite of tools to help you manage and ultimately eliminate your student loan debt. If you're the parent of college-bound children, Tuition.io will help you find ways to save and pay for their education.

Tuition.io is also the platform Deaconess will begin using to manage our current Tuition Assistance Program applications and process.

Start your journey at www.tuition.io, and see the back of this flyer for direction on creating your own account.
