Meet Our Family Medicine Residents

Micheala Taylor, DO Class of 2024

Hi! My name is Micheala, and I was raised as a Hoosier until my father relocated our family to a small town in South Dakota, where he was called to be the pastor of a church. I spent my teenage and young adult years there, where I got a job as a CNA and fell in love with medicine. Eventually, I did my undergraduate studies at Presentation College, a small private college located on the convent of the Presentation Sisters. After college, I received my medical degree from the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine, and small-town West Virginia was where my love for family medicine was born.

I am married to my best friend and have three beautiful children. My family is my motivation for everything I do, so when searching for a residency to continue my medical training, I wanted a program that valued service to the community, as well as one that valued me as a mother, not only as a physician. Deaconess was the perfect fit for that!

My interest in medicine is simple—I love it all. That is why family medicine was an easy decision for me. Women's health, geriatrics, and OMT are some of my passions!

When I'm not working, I love spending time with my family outdoors, binge watching home improvement shows (even though I am terrible with a hammer), and anything Marvel or Harry Potter related.
